[EL ASESINO, EL OCCISO NISMAN, Y UN ALMÁCIGO DE BOLUDOS...]

El asesino

A Nisman lo mató un narcisista de twitter y palo-selfie, un chuleta piscinas, un boludo de pileta que marca biceps, un tontolaba inhibido y desvaído, que cuando quiso ultimar a Nisman como si el fiscal se hubiera suicidado, no se le ocurrió otra cosa que rociarlo con un estupefaciente en spray de los que usa la Naval, traerlo al cuarto de baño en calzón corto y camiseta, descalzo, arrodillarlo mediante un taconazo en la corva, un culatazo en la cabeza, y con una bersa 22 con silenciador, meterle una [bala dum dum] por encima y por detrás de la oreja.

Y encima no acertó y lo dejó agonizante durante horas.

El occiso

Si Nisman se hubiera suicidado lo habría hecho vestido con su mejor traje de alpaca azul marino, camisa almidonada, corbata con nudo Windsor, el peluco de oro que le regaló su vieja cuando terminó la carrera, sentado en el sillón de su despacho de la AMIA, rodeado de legajos, con la bandera argentina a su derecha, y se habría finiquitado con alguno de los viejos métodos que no despeinan ni alteran el perfil del tribuno, porque Nisman era un esteta, y llevaba años esforzándose en esculpir su mentón para dejar atrás las hechuras de mariachi mostachudo, algo gañán, que tenía cuando Nestor Kischner lo eligió como fiscal-jefe del caso AMIA, quizás creyendo que sería otro pelotudo como Parrilli.

El asesino

Tuvo que fingir que era Nisman quien respondió a las 18 horas del sábado, cuando recibió en su celular un mensaje de Waldo Wolff, vicepresidente de la DAIA, preguntándole quién debía levantar el secreto de sumario sobre los miembros de los servicios de inteligencia. "Respondió que el que lo tenía que hacer era el secretario de Inteligencia, Oscar Parilli, y me envió una foto del escritorio en el que estaba trabajando". Es decir, una foto de la mesa del comedor de Nisman con folios y carpetas desparramados y media docena de marcadores amarillos.

El occiso

Nisman ni harto de vino podría haber cometido un error de ese calibre, porque decidir sobre el secreto de un sumario, sea sobre los miembros de inteligencia o los irreductos cafres de la Cámpora, corresponde al Juez. Pero si el que amenazaba a Nisman le preguntó para poder contestarle a Wolff, pudo responder que el responsable era Parrilli para mandar un mensaje en clave. Y, además, Nisman no hubiera creído que esa mesa fuera llamativa, digna de fotografiarse, porque para él y para cualquiera que no sea alérgico al trabajo intelectual es de lo más normal en cualquier día y a cualquier hora.

Los investigadores

Almácigo de boludos: pregunten por la ketamina que encontraron en su cuerpo, por si se le hubiera perdido a la Naval... Y no sigan embarrando la cancha: no busquen dónde estaban los sospechosos a la hora de su muerte, sino dónde estaban cuando le dispararon.

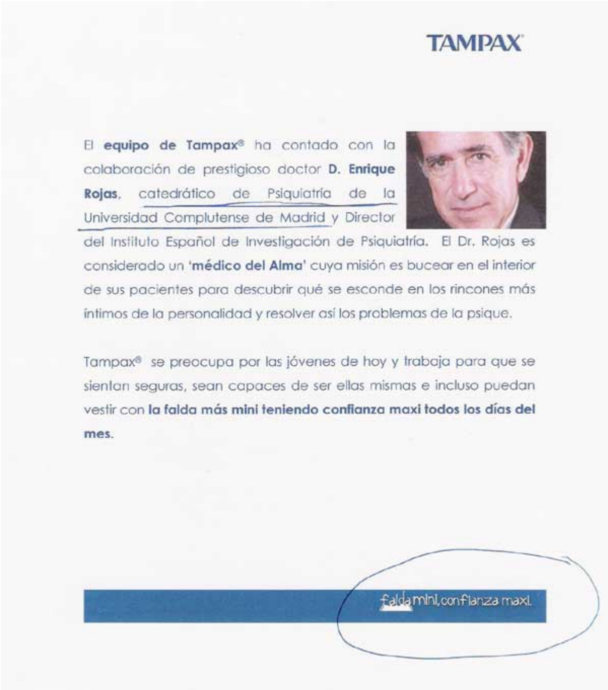
EL FRAUDE DEL FALSO PSIQUIATRA ENRIQUE ROJAS MONTES



EL FRAUDE DEL FALSO PSIQUIATRA ENRIQUE ROJAS MONTES

(Artículo publicado el 02/10/2009, a las 08:27, eliminado hoy por los hackers, junto al resto del tema "Dr. Enrique Rojas Montes, el fraude", y que republicamos, y republicaremos tantas veces como sea necesario. Rogamos lo reproduzcan en sus blogs)

Cualquier memo irredento puede obtener un doctorado, una especialidad en Psiquiatría, y una cátedra en una Universidad hispana. Los hay a puñados. En cuaquier universidad anglosajona conseguirían, como mucho, una plaza de bedel.

Aquí, hasta un liante especializado en la engañifa, la filfa, el timo, el ardid, la argucia, la artimaña, el embeleco, el fraude y el desfalco con dolo, ha obtenido fama como Psiquiatra, tiene una consulta cobrando unas minutas de Premio Nobel, y ha adornado su curriculum con el título de Catedrático de Psiquiatría de la Universidad Complutense de Madrid sin ser nada de eso. Y, fíado en la tontería inabarcable de los lectores y editores, ha publicado docenas de libros sin rigor científico ni puñetero talento literario que han sido superventas, y es citado y celebrado por la prensa "seria", los organizadores de Jornadas, Conferencias, Congresos de Psiquiatría, etc.

Sí, hablamos de Enrique Rojas Montes:

Según los certificados de la Universidad Complutense:

1) No es catedrático de Psiquiatría en la Universidad Complutense
2) No existe cátedra de Psiquiatría en la Facultad de Psicología

3) Enrique Rojas Montes ni siquiera formó parte del claustro de profesores.

Según el Colegio de Médicos de Madrid:

4) Está colegiado como Licenciado en Medicina, no como Psiquiatra.

Según el Consejo de Médicos de España:

5) Consta como médico de medicina general, no como Psiquiatra.

Pero no pasa nada... Es socio supernumerario del Opus Dei, una de esas sectas de la Iglesia Católica.

Y luego se extrañan del anticlericalismo que hay.

Muchas gracias gato. Me ha encantado tu artículo.

Estuve ojeando "El asalto a la Fundación Menéndez Pidal. Alucinante, pero más alucinante que nadie haga nada rápidamente para comprobar si v/afirmaciones sobre la Fundación Ramón Areces son ciertas y procedan en consecuencia.
Lo mismo de siempre. El pez grande se come al chico y el más sinvergüenza hace cucharas.

Tienes un contenido muy interesante en el blog. Me gusta.

No tengo esa columna de enlaces que tienes tú, pq no sé hacerlos (no sé ni siquiera si se puede con mi blog, he intentado varias veces pero no me ha salido). Si tú (que sabes), puedes hacerlo desde fuera, hazlo por favor.

La verdad que nunca me habia dado por buscar esta serie de cosas,pero bueno comentar que estudio en un instituto del opus, y mi madre ha sido tratada por este hombre desde hace bastante años despues de ser tratada por diferentes y muy variopintos Psicologos,a cada cual mas criminal y mas peligroso, y sin duda alguna el unico que ha solucionado el problema desde el 2009 hasta hoy dia ha sido este hombre, se que tiene un buen equipo de gente que trabaja con el. Asique me he quedado bastante sorprendido

Estaría bien aclarar esto del doctorado en Extremadura para dejarlo todo bien atado. No cuadra que sea doctorado en esa universidad y él publicite serlo en la Complutense. Y si fuera de la Complutense¿también debería estar publicado en el BOE?¿no hay datos sobre eso?

ROGER WYBOT Y EL CASO WESTON Y BRAUN (1)

A Javier Coria

Everything is true, except for the facts. A. T. Cholerton

I. Il pleut, il pleut bergère

Los asesinatos ocurrieron en la última semana de enero de 1955, en Barcelona y Boulogne-Sur-Mer. Aquel enero se recuerda como uno de los peores del siglo XX. Tormentas de nieve, huracanes y hielo azotaron Europa y al deshielo se sumó un diluvió que duro casi cuarenta días. No hubo día sin naufragio, sin población sumergida por las aguas o sin cadáveres dando tumbos por los ríos. El 16 de enero, hacía las 2 de la tarde, cayó sobre Londres un manto de oscuridad total. Los mismos ciudadanos que habían aguantado impertérritos el Blitz, además de los enconados esfuerzos del gobierno británico y Porton Down por fumigarlos con venenos varios, perdieron, por fin, la compostura. Hubo ataques de histeria y algún patatús de patriotas que creyeron que había llegado el Armagedón comunista. La nube de partículas de carbón se fué en media hora (1).

El corresponsal de ABC en París, presa de un delirium tremens retórico, llamaba al Sena "la serpiente fluvial de Lutetia" y seguía, metro a metro, la subida del cauce, la inundación de los puentes y los barrios, apilando adjetivos y perífrasis mientras otros apilaban sacos de arena. Del 23 al 26 se dieron los picos más altos de la riada que alcanzó los 7.30 m. sobre el nivel normal. En un viejo documental vemos que el presidente Mendes-France, con cara de frío y lástima, sobre todo de sí mismo porque su gobierno estaba en un estado más ruinoso que Paris, presenta sus condolencias a un puñado de afectados. Junto a él, Mitterrand, su ministro de Interior, intenta dar lustre a la bufanda de jubilado que lleva alzando el mentón a lo Mussolini (2).

En el Quai des Orfèvres, Maigret estaba cabreado por muchas razones. Por la oscuridad que llegada al mediodía para quedarse, por la humedad que rezumaban las paredes de su despacho, por la estufa que calentaba pero no acababa de secar el abrigo que había colgado al llegar. Y porque no había dormido bien. A Madame Maigret le dolía una muela y había pasado la noche callada, sufriente y despierta. La vigilia había sido interminable, sólo con el ruido de la lluvia y de algún despistado chapoteando por las aceras de Richard Lenoir. La primera pipa del día se había apagado al minuto. Y no había trabajo: papeles y problemas, sí, pero ni un solo caso que le llevara fuera de aquella olla de vapor y aburrimiento. Una turista inglesa, había desaparecido de su hotel. dejando como único rastro la habitación llena de botellas de ginebra vacias. Todos los días llamaban desde Londres para saber cómo iba la búsqueda.

Si exceptuamos las veces que han ido a ganarle las guerras a los franceses, podría decirse que los británicos tienen una enconada afición a molestarlos, sea dejándoles el país lleno de cementerios, sea criticando el desayuno continental, sea plantando cadáveres en la puerta, como el perro del vecino que te caga en tu jardín. Apareciera viva o muerta las explicaciones no iban a convencer a la prensa británica, que había hecho de la desaparición un novelón donde se refocilaban con gusto de la incompetencia de la policia francesa y los peligros de Paris.

Joseph, el conserje, no se había atrevido a decirle a Maigret la peor de las noticias del día: las gabarras que llevaban el carbón estabán amarradas y parte del carbón del sótano se había anegado. Maigret era un alma campesina que fundamentaba las certezas de la vida en la rutina: su mujer, su estufa y su pipa. Si fallaba alguna, que Dios o el Diablo nos protegiera de su cólera jupiterina.

A unos cientos de metros, en el 11 de Rue des Saussaies, Roger Wybot tenía estufa electrica, fumaba un cigarrillo, leía un informe con absoluta concentración y no se le conocía ni se le conocería hembra que le distrajera de sus pensamientos. En el año 55, Wybot tenía 43 años, llevaba 10 comiendo bien. El eterno joven enjuto que había creado la DST iba entrando en carnes. Conservaba el aire erguido de la milicia y la corta estatura, pero la mirada franca y fija de la juventud había desaparecido. Tenía bolsas de insomnio y los párpados a media persiana. Algún tremendista diría que no podía soportar la miseria humana en todo su esplendor. Pero Wybot, que siempre gustaba de ir peinado, planchado y maqueado, tenía más la mirada calculadora y apreciativa de un chulo de Pigalle que de un Segismundo. Con la vejez adquirió el tipo y mal encare de un sapo. Siguió siendo presumido y los experimentos de su peluquero con el tinte, lamentables.

Wybot fue el mejor jefe de contraespionaje que hubo en Europa en el siglo XX. Era inteligente y sabía su oficio. No se invistió de cruzado de ninguna causa, no se dejó seducir por sus aliados ni se cegó en el análisis de sus enemigos. Sólo cometió tres pecados: el peluquero, el sastre y su biografo, Philippe Bernert. Bernert es de la misma escuela retórica que el guionista de Fanfan La Tulipe y se empeña en hacer de Wybot un Fanfan "intrépide, fougueux, effronté et généreux". La elocutio elegida son triadas de sinónimos que caen sobre el lector con la insistencia de una gota china durante 543 páginas. Hay ocasiones —yo supongo que Bernert abusaba de la absenta o algún espirituoso de alta graduación— en que hace hablar a Wybot como a Caperucita: "L'ami de Passy est à la fête. Je le devine tendu, excité, affamé comme un loup, sûr de me tenir enfin à sa merçi" (3)

Hay algo que la guerra arrebata del alma al ser humano para siempre: el abandono a las emociones. Wybot, "le petit Warin", "Olivier", inició ese camino sin retorno con 29 años, a manos del jefe de la policía secreta de Vichy, Paul Paillole (4). Nada nos contó en sus memorias de la tortura que sufrió, sólo que fue un interrogatorio más "riguroso". Pero sí nos describió el momento en que Paillole le escupió con sorna que Pierre Fourcaud (5), el jefe de la célula de la Resistencia en que Wybot militaba, era un corrupto. Wybot no habla de lo que sintió por la traición. Posiblemente, ya viejo, había olvidado sus sentimientos. Sabemos que Fourcaud se convirtió en un caso más para analizar, otro capitán de desesperados, que entregaba a sus agentes a la Gestapo por codicia, cobardía o pura imbecilidad. Cuando Wybot se sentó en el sillón del interrogador se convirtió en el monstruo bifronte que buscaba en todos los seres humanos. Sus explicaciones psicológicas sobre las confesiones de los detenidos delatan al aficionado a Simenon. La realidad fue más roma: tunda de palos y una pluma para firmar la declaración voluntaria. Si el detenido pertenecía al gobierno o a la clase bien con tenerlo despierto fuera de hora impregnándose de la mugre del lugar, bastaba.

Aquel 30 de enero de 1955 era domingo. Wybot estaba en su despacho, callado como un somormujo, leyendo un informe. El informe no trataba de Marruecos, ni de Argelia ni siquiera de Jean Mons o Emmanuel D'Astier, agentes soviéticos y santones de la Resistencia que se le habían escapado por las alcantarillas del poder en la investigación de las filtraciones del Consejo de la Defensa. Wybot tenía mordida de fox terrier, pero, como todos los fox terrier, era maleducado y poco obediente a los amos. Es posible que la Marianne le agradeciera sus servicios a Francia, pero presidentes y primeros ministros lo habrían guillotinado con gusto. No sé si Wybot, gaullista confeso, acortó la vida del general De Gaulle, pero sí estoy seguro de que, desde el momento en que De Gaulle conoció a su seguidor, aumentó el numero de berrinches, soponcios y sofocones a los que esa mediocridad megalomaniaca era tan dado. Eso es de agradecer.

En ese momento, no era De Gaulle, sino Mendes France y su gobierno, además de Policia y la Sureté los que habían quedado con el culo al aire gracias a los buenos oficios de Wybot. Allá en las colonias de Ultramar, el ejército y las autoridades coloniales, por no hablar de independentistas y gauche caviar, maldecían las entrañas que lo habían traído a este mundo. Es decir que incluso para alguien tan puntilloso como Wybot en crearse el mayor número de follones y enemigos en el menor espacio de tiempo, distracción no le faltaba. Por eso es extraño que pasara ese fin de semana lejos de la chimenea de su casa siguiendo la suerte de dos espías británicos a los que habían dado matarile en dos hoteluchos de Boulogne-sur-mer y Barcelona.

II. Enemigos íntimos

Hacker: Anyway, the Americans will always protect us from the Russians, won't they?
Sir Humphrey: Russians? Who's talking about the Russians?
Hacker: Well, the independent deterrent.
Sir Humphrey: It's to protect us against the French!
Hacker: The French?! But that's astounding!
Sir Humphrey: Why?

Hacker: Well they're our allies, our partners.
Sir Humphrey: Well, they are now, but they've been our enemies for the most of the past 900 years. If they've got the bomb, we must have the bomb!
Hacker: If it's for the French, of course, that's different. Makes a lot of sense.

(Yes Minister: "The Challenge")

He hablado de dos espías británicos, aunque no habría quedado claramente acreditada la profesión, si los servicios secretos no se hubieran apresurado a desmentirla. Los espías pueden ser cualquier cosa menos discretos y si lo son, sus jefes se encargan de montar una escandalera para protegerlos de las preguntas indiscretas que nadie ha formulado. En cualquier caso, un cadáver con las etiquetas del traje cortadas, una serie de cachivaches y tiliches que van desde una estilográfica-pistola-con-dispensador-de veneno hasta brújula-con-radio-transmisor-y grabador-activado por voz, a más de un epistolario con fotos que certifican la identidad, por si hay dudas sobre la documentación pergeñada del sujeto, es la carcasa de un agente transmigrado.

La SDCE, que suele contratar matones del milieu para estos menesteres, se despide a la francesa del muerto, sans adieu. Los anglófonos, si no pueden conseguir el crucigrama de The Times del día, dejan un verso de algún poeta insigne o una frase enigmática. Sólo entonces ils filent à l'anglaise. El Misterio del Hombre de Somerton (o Caso Tamam Shud) es un clásico del género. Durante la Guerra Fría, asesinar disidentes, comunistas, espías o vecinos molestos se denominó "acción ejecutiva" si procedía del bloque occidental. Más allá del Telón de Acero se hablaba de Mokryye Dela o "trabajo mojado" porque se derramaba sangre. Hasta que alcanzaron cierta destreza con el uso de venenos, los directorios soviéticos encargados de "tareas especiales" gustaban de armar la trapisonda antes, durante y después de las ejecuciones. La imagen de cuatro gorilas del KGB abrazando al tovarich respondón y metiéndolo en el Gaz Pobeda sólo era el preludio de una desmesurada tortura y una truculenta ejecución con muchos tiros e insultos. Sólo Alemania ha gustado de esos abrigos de cuero negro y modales tabernarios en sus esbirros. El europeo civilizado no entiende semejante manca di finezza:

Aquel hombre me deseperaba. No tenía yo la menor objeción a que pasara el tiempo planeando matanzas contra la burguesía, pero no acertaba a comprender por qué no podía hacerlo con una sonrisa radiante y animosa. (P.G Wodehouse, Gracias Jeeves)

En ese sentido nos escandalizó el asunto Litvinenko. Mal está que los enemigos vayan a tu casa a arreglar cuentas con sus traidores, pero dejarlos a medio matar y, en el proceso, pringar de radiación de polonio a un puñado de súbditos británicos es un lavoro grossolano.

Nuestros espías, Samuel Braun y Ernest Weston, fueron británicos asesinados por británicos. Yo lo creo y Wybot lo sabía.

Al estar implicados servicios de información y organismos estatales siempre viene a la cabeza los términos de suicidio y suicidio inducido. Ernest Weston era un guiri dipsómano que gustaba de camareros y demimondaines del Barrio Chino y Braun un viajero con un maletón lleno de ropa que delataba sus pocas ganas de morir. "La policía se pregunta: (...) ¿Por que iba a llevar alguien que pretende suicidarse una maleta con 14 pares de calcetines, 20 camisas y cuatro trajes?" (Margaret Shipley "MI5 joins 3-nation Spy probe", Sunday Chronicle 6-2-1955).

digitales, ni subieron zombis de escopolamina a tirarse desde un decimosexto piso, ni se metieron en una bolsa de golf después de muertos, ni se ahogaron en un río con agua del grifo, características imprescindibles para hablar de suicidio de estado.

Respecto al suicidio inducido, sólo conozco el caso de Sócrates, según Platón, que era bastante crédulo y se tragó las patrañas que le contó Fedón de Ellis y no se informó de los síntomas reales de la muerte con cicuta, pero así eran los socráticos, mediterraneos de mucho hablar y poco observar. También recuerdo el de Séneca el Joven, que se cortó las venas y, como no le pasó nada porque era un individuo gordo y sanguineo en exceso, tomó cicuta, que le sentó como un poleo menta y al final sólo un baño caliente lo mató.

Weston y Braun murieron la noche del sábado, 29 de enero de 1955 * envenenados posiblemente con barbitúricos. El día 27, jueves, Samuel Braun volvió al Nouvel Hôtel de Boulogne-sur-Mer a las 10 de la noche. Al mediodía del 28 una camarera lo encontró en su habitación en coma profundo. Fue llevado al hospital donde permaneció en ese estado hasta la noche del 29 que falleció. El día 29, Ernest Weston, que era de hábitos noctámbulos, volvió de madrugada a la Pensión Anita. A las 8 de la noche el servicio  lo encontró a medio vestir o a medio desnudar, sobre la cama y en coma profundo. El médico de urgencias diagnosticó envenenamiento por sustancia tóxica y ordenó su traslado al Hospital Clinico de Barcelona donde falleció a las 23’45 de ese mismo día.

Es decir primero envenenaron a Braun y después a Weston, pero Braun tardó más en morir y lo hicieron los dos casi simultáneamente separados por una distancia de 1000 kms. Pudo ser un solo agente el que realizara las dos ejecuciones porque tuvo tiempo para desplazarse desde Boulogne a Barcelona.

Hubo otras coincidencias, unas inventadas, otras amañadas, que se adujeron para explicar por qué las policías de España, Francia, Reino Unido, Alemania y Austria, además de sus servicios secretos, habían mostrado interés por estos individuos:

1. Ernest Weston y Samuel Braun habrían sido vistos juntos cruzando el Canal de la Mancha a bordo del vapor Canterbury la tarde del 25 de enero. En Calais se separaron *. Esto es falso e inverosímil. De acuerdo con el pasaporte de Weston y las indagaciones de la Policía española, Weston estuvo en España desde el 15 de Diciembre sin salir del país y a partir del 21 estuvo localizado en la Pensión Anita. Respecto a Braun, le habían robado el pasaporte y no había fotos entre las pertenencias que había dejado, luego el testimonio de los testigos (si los hubo) no tenía fiabilidad alguna. No se presentó lista de pasajeros del Canterbury donde tendrían que haber aparecido los nombres.

Esto último, en realidad, no era tan fácil. Ernest Weston pasó por la apisonadora fonética de los periodistas españoles, la de los compadres borrachos de la calle Escudellers y la de alguien de ABC en Sevilla, que había adelantado la Feria de Abril, y quedó que no lo reconocía ni su madre ni el cura que lo cristianó: Westen Ernest, Samuel Westera, Wester Ernest, Ernest Western fueron los nombres que este pobre espía tuvo en España, sin proponérselo. El Foreign Office también se sumó al bautizo y añadió otro nombre: Ernest Davis . El pasaporte y el registro consular de su fallecimiento lo etiquetan como Ernest Weston, pero da igual. No hay rastro de semejante británico, nacido en 1907, natural de Birmingham e ingeniero, en censos, registros parroquiales, listas de reclutamiento, hacienda y otros nidos donde los ciudadanos dejamos huella. Weston le contó a un camarero, Ángel Masdeu, que había trabajado en un hotel de Londres *. Efectivamente, existió un Ernest Weston, espía y que trabajaba en un hotel: era un personaje de la novela News of Paul Temple de Francis Durbridge. Las historias del detective Paul Temple fueron emitidas por BBC radio durante los años 50 y gozaron de enorme popularidad en el Reino Unido.

El nombre de Samuel Braun también sufrió los avatares de la prensa española, pero en menor medida: sólo se cambió el apellido en Brown y Baraun. Hay lío con su nacionalidad porque las autoridades y la prensa británica dijeron que era "húngaro nacionalizado británico". Los documentos que publico aquí dicen que era checoslovaco y nos cuentan algo de su familia y orígenes: El Certificado de Naturalización AZ 36677, Home Office No B. 20893, emitido el 23 de diciembre de 1947, reconoce al solicitante como "Samu, también conocido como Samuel Alexander Braun", nacionalidad checoslovaca, nacido en Dunatska Streda, Hungria, el 21 de enero de 1900, hijo de Mark Braun (húngaro) y Antonia Braun (checoslovaca), estado civil: soltero, por disolución de matrimonio, domiciliado en 14, Eden Terrace, Londonderry, Irlanda del Norte, de profesión director gerente.

Dunatska Streda es la forma inglesa de Dunajská Streda en eslovaco, Dunaszerdahely en húngaro o Niedermarktis en alemán. La ciudad, situada al sur de Eslovaquia pertenecía al Imperio Austrohúngaro cuando Samuel Braun nació en 1900. El 1919 pasó a formar parte de la recién nacida Checoslovaquia y sus habitantes adquirieron esta nacionalidad. En el Primer arbitraje de Viena (1938), esta parte de Checoslovaquia fue cedida por el Reich a su aliado Hungría. Dunatska Streda perteneció a Hungría hasta 1945, en que los aliados la devolvieron a Checoslovaquia. Es decir o hubo un error en el pasaporte británico de Braun o se desinformó conscientemente. Las autoridades británicas tenían acceso fácil al documento de naturalización y ésta había aparecido en la London Gazette el 13 de febrero de 1948. No había nadie con nombre parecido que se prestara a confusión. Y en la fecha de expedición del pasaporte, Dunatska Streda era checoslovaca. La Vanguardia dice que "Se sabe de Alexander Brown (sic) que se presentó en la referida pensión de Boulogne diciendo que era húngaro, aseveración que apoyó exhibiendo su pasaporte" (La Vanguardia, 4 febrero 1955, p. 14). El estilo pompier, cuya fuente es, indudablemente, un atestado policial, me deja un poco perplejo. No me puedo imaginar a Braun, cuya familia había sido enviada al exterminio por los húngaros y que, hasta los 18 años, había padecido varios pogromos de los mismos, reivindicar semejante nacionalidad, ni por qué ni a cuento de qué le dio el pronto del patriotismo magyar con el empleado del hotel. Es el añadido superfluo que suele acompañar a una mentira. Pero este subterfugio nos hace más verosímil el siguiente mensaje: "Se sabe también que el interfecto había pertenecido a la organización de evadidos residentes al otro lado del telón de acero. Ello coincide, al parecer, con declaraciones del interesado en las que manifestaba tener contactos con habituales de los países satélites y que era conocido por los servicios de información occidentales" (La Vanguardia, 8 febrero 1955, p. 17).

Un viejo director de colegio al que Wybot tenía que responder de sus fechorías le dijo un día: Warin, responda sí o no a mis preguntas. Cuando explica se condena.

Wybot no habría dado tantas versiones, tantas causas y tantas explicaciones ante un cadáver molesto. Sobre todo en este caso: las autoridades británicas no confirmaron legalmente la identidad de Braun, porque su pasaporte había desaparecido y ellos no buscaron el duplicado que guardaban; pagaron el enterramiento en el cementerio de Boulogne, pero su tumba no lleva nombre y no registraron el fallecimiento ni como Samuel Braun ni como desconocido en el Registro Consular. Enviaron agentes del MI5, MI6, Scotland Yard y el Foreign Office a meter las narices en la investigación francesa y pagaron un entierro de alguien por el que no tenían gran interés en saber su nombre o su nacionalidad.

Sin embargo de este perfecto desconocido "se sabe" que está implicado en la red de evadidos del Este. Braun, del que se dice que "Jamás sostuvo conversación con nadie y vivía de un modo solitario" (La Vanguardia, 4 febrero 1955, p. 14) va contando que tiene contactos con servicios de espionaje comunistas y occidentales. O era un fantasma, en cuyo caso no era necesarío eliminarlo, o tenía el mecanismo de sobrevivencia de los dodos. Las redes de evasión de la posguerra y las de la guerra fría, entre las que se incluían las ratlines de los nazis, estaban controladas por los servicios de inteligencia militar, principalmente estadounidenses y británicos. Con ellos cooperaban las policias y ejércitos de otros países. Las operaciones eran diseñadas por la inteligencia militar y requerían militares de frontera, cuerpos especiales del ejército, documentación genuina expedida por autoridades aliadas u organizaciones obedientes (Cruz Roja o UNRA), etc. Los agentes, informantes y colaboradores eran reclutados entre delincuentes y criminales de guerra de todo pelaje y origen que estaban recluidos en los campos de prisioneros y en los campos de refugiados. Celo anticomunista era el único requisito que se exigía. Los grupos de evasión nazis fueron subsumidos rápidamente por los aliados y se unieron de forma entusiasta. Además recibían dinero, protección y via libre para el contrabando. En estas operaciones, los servicios de inteligencia "civil" (MI6, CIA y SDEC) jugaron un papel igual de sucio pero muy secundario y sus iniciativas eran consideradas por los militares como intromisiones y, a veces, como imbecilidades de aficionado. Esto explica, por ejemplo, que muchas veces, la CIA o sus predecesores anduvieran tras la pista de individuos que estaban en manos de interrogadores del ejercito americano.

Las oleadas de refugiados que huían de la represión comunista por razones legítimas fueron admitidas de acuerdo a una estrategia política y militar de propaganda y recopilación de información. Cuando se vieron con cientos de miles de personas sin especial conocimiento sobre las industrias o arsenales químicos soviéticos y los que sabían algo a los tres meses ya estaban amortizados, cambiaron el paso y concluyeron que lo más efectivo era financiar y dirigir guerrillas de nacionalistas, mercenarios nazis y otros venados en territorio comunista. Aquí ya intervino la CIA, el MI6 y, a la hora de recibir la medalla de la incompetencia, los militares se mostraron generosos y cedieron el protagonismo a los servicios civiles.

Por tanto, cualquier agente o sabandija que se moviera en esas redes, con fines políticos, monetarios o altruistas, estaba fichado y sus movimientos seguidos. Los Harry Lime reales traficaban con la penicilina proporcionada por el ejército y gozaban de la protección de la policía. Si Samuel Braun formaba parte de las redes de evadidos, existía un amplio dossier sobre sus actividades. En 1947 el MI6 estaba dedicado a volar con minas magnéticas barcos que iban a llevar refugiados judíos a Palestina (Operation Embarras). Braun era judio y a un judio no se le daba la nacionalidad británica si no era aún útil al Gobierno británico. En el orden de cosas, las razones humanitarias no eran prioritarias en el gobierno laborista de Clement Attlee, como demostró en el archicomentado caso del SS Exodus. En 1955 Samuel Braun, si vivía o trabajaba en Viena, como se dijo, estaba, como poco, en los ficheros americanos, británicos, franceses, soviéticos y austriacos. El "se sabe" sólo pudo tener como única fuente a los servicios de inteligencia. Si esto era verdad, la filtración vino no del MI6, que lo tendría a su servicio, ni de la inteligencia militar, que no filtraba nada, sino del MI5 y su aliado la DST. Si esto era mentira, la desinformación también vino del MI5 porque Wybot no cooperaba con el MI6.

Las amistades y enemistades de Wybot con los servicios de inteligencia británicos se forjaron en la Segunda Guerra Mundial. Wybot sólo estuvo un año en Londres, pero, en ese tiempo, transformó el Service de Renseignements, que era una suerte de radio macuto de los exiliados, en una unidad de contrainteligencia y contraespionaje de gran eficacia: el Bureau central de Renseignements et d'Action (BCRA), dirigido por Passy. Se recopilaron miles de fichas y datos sobre franceses resistentes y colaboracionistas, se cruzaron datos con profesiones, ejército, familias, áreas políticas y departamentos administrativos, se añadió información sobre campos de concentración, rutas de escape, y oficiales nazis. La finalidad de este fichero era compulsar la identidad y bona fide de los franceses que llegaban a Reino Unido y pretendían enrolarse en las Forces françaises libres o servir en las redes de La Résistance. Por otra parte, la información sacada de los exhaustivos interrogatorios, se transformaba en inteligencia sobre las redes de la resistencia interior. La BCRA puso nerviosos a tres grupos : el de aquellos que pretendían que la guerra o la militancia era una cuestión de honor y consideraban esta unidad como una especie de Gestapo (Emmanuel D'Astier), al MI6 y al SOE.

Han pasado más de setenta años desde que terminó la guerra y aún no sabemos el papel real que desempeñaron estos dos organismos en el conflicto. Como tampoco sabemos nada de la interferencia de la inteligencia naval en las fricciones entre los servicios de inteligencia. Samuel Hamrick resume muy bien el problema: "En una guerra total se sacrifican operaciones militares menores para que tengan éxito tras mucho más importantes. Al informar al enemigo de ofensivas militares reales pero más pequeñas, se ponen en riesgo y a veces se pierden vidas para que triunfe una ofensiva más grande y más importante. Sea cual sea la necesidad de estos sacrificios en la guerra, en tiempo se paz serían difíciles de explicar. Para un público profano en la materia, las guerras se ganan con coraje y valor no con falsedades y engaño y no con el sacrificio de sus compatriotas. No podrían confesarse las operaciones ofensivas de engaño militar sin admitir esas pérdidas" Este es el principio operativo militar que explica miles de muertes de militantes del SOE y miembros de la resistencia a manos de la Gestapo y la Abwehr. Cuando se está hablando de una guerra que acarreó la muerte a más de setenta millones de personas, la suerte de dos o tres mil agentes (nunca sabremos la cifra exacta) es un capítulo menor. Como lo fueron los casi 800 soldados americanos muertos por fuego amigo en Slapton Sands.

Hay una historiografía ñoña —perfectamente respetable, por otra parte— que hace hincapié en la faceta humana de los agentes ofrecidos a la Gestapo. El "toque dickensiano" que gustaba a un redactor-jefe en The Wire. Es una suerte de esteticismo que permanece cuidadosamente alejado de los calabozos, la orina, las heces, los piojos y los hígados reventados de las víctimas, que suelen caminar, en su versión, con la cabeza erguida camino del pelotón de fusilamiento y no arrastrados al tiro en la nuca o la horca. Fuera de su interés han quedado algunas cuestiones para entender qué fue el SOE, quién fraguó estas operaciones de engaño, quiénes eran elegidos como carnaza y cómo fueron reciclados muchos de sus agentes en la guerra sucia contra el comunismo o lo que se interpusiera en el camino de sus intereses. Además de los jovenes idealistas que combatieron al nazismo, el SOE y la Resistencia alistaron mafiosos, traficantes, criminales y demás morralla que luego fueron muy útiles a los aliados en la guerra fría. Dominique Venturi, Marcel Francisci, Gaston Deferre, Joe Renucci... unos gaullistas, otros socialistas, todos condecorados, todos mafiosos siguieron colaborando con Francia, Estados Unidos o Reino Unido aportando "soldados" o dinero del tráfico de opio. Fueron héroes del SOE los que ponían minas en barcos de refugiados judíos o los que colaboraron en sacar nazis del radar. Se llamaron "Special Operation Branch".

Wybot era militar de carrera y sabía reconocer estas operaciones. Otra cosa es que aprobara que fueran sus compatriotas los corderos sacrificados. Por ello extremó la dureza en sus interrogatorios de agentes o chivatos que el MI6 o el SOE intentó infiltrar en las filas de La France Libre y La Résistance. Las intervenciones del MI6 y el SOE F Section reducían considerablemente la esperanza de vida de un militante de la Resistencia. Hubo torturas y una muerte en Duke Street, sede del BCRA. De los torturados, todos eran agentes enviados por el MI6, excepto un caso, que se probó que era un espía nazi (no sabemos si reutilizado por el SIS). El supuesto luchador antifascista Paul Manuel, que murió estrangulado, aunque los oficiales franceses intentaron hacerlo pasar por suicidio, se llamaba Rudi Walther y era un espía alemán. Los nombres de los que enviaban a estos infiltrados al BCRA son los mismos que enviaron, protegieron, financiaron y salvaron de la pena capital en Francia a uno de los peores traidores de la Segunda Guerra Mundial: Henry Dericourt, Gilbert, a saber: Nicolas Bodington, head del SOE F Section, Colonel Maurice Buckmaster, commander del SOE F Section, Lieutenant Colonel Claude Dansey, assistant chief del SIS, Archibald Boyle, Air Commodore y director de la RAF Intelligence and SOE Director of Intelligence & Security y Stewart Menzies, Director del MI6, Gubbins. Ellos fueron los responsables de la destrucción de los mayores reseaux de la Resistencia en Francia y ellos entregaron a la Gestapo a miles de militantes.

Hay por esos mundos una serie de eminencias gallipavas cloqueando las acusaciones que un mártir de Passy y Wybot hizo contra éstos: Maurice Dufour. Bien podrían explicar qué hacía un agente del SOE y del MI6, intentando alistarse en las FFL, diciendo simultáneamente que lo había hecho a la fuerza y quiénes lo protegieron para que presentara una demanda contra DeGaulle y los enemigos principales del MI6 y del SOE, Passy y Wybot, justamente aquellos que hacían peligrar sus operaciones de "engaño ofensivo". Refugiado, 28 años, pobre como un ratón de iglesia y mandado de los servicios secretos. ¿Rebelde? ¿Valiente? Ouais, mon oeil!

En el caso de Dericourt, la historia dio una segunda oportunidad a Wybot. Desde agosto de 1944 Wybot siguió el rastro de Gilbert. El 22 de noviembre de 1946, la investigación realizada por el comisario René Gouillaud y dirigida por Wybot, llevó a la detención de Henri Dericourt en el 58, Rue Pergolese. En Mayo de 1948 Dericourt fue liberado: los oficiales nazis que habían identificado al traidor, unos "desaparecieron" de las custodias británicas y americanas, otros, los británicos se negaron a que fueran interrogados y finalmente, Bodington apareció en la Corte de Paris como testigo de la defensa de Dericourt, confirmando su papel como agente encargado de misiones "irregulares".

Si Wybot hubiera pedido consejo a Maigret, Dericourt no se le habría escapado por las cloacas de los servicios secretos. Maigret comprendía mejor a sus criminales. Dericourt era una rata del milieu, huyendo toda la vida de sus orígenes, pero apegado a sus peores vicios: lacayo, cínico y traidor. El "froide rigueur" en el análisis de las pruebas poco sirve para entender estas personalidades. Maigret habría leído las cursilísimas cartas que Dericourt le enviaba a Jeannot desde la cárcel. Seguramente habría conversado con ella, porque ella era un flanco débil en la coraza y bebía mucho; pero, sobre todo, habría visitado el pueblo de Coulonges-en-Tardenois y Dericourt, ante alguien que supiera que era hijo de una sirvienta y de un labriego, habría perdido pie. Maigret no le tenía miedo al ser humano. Wybot sí. Se escondía en un castillo de reglas, lógicas y principios y desde la torre pretendía analizar al enemigo. Siempre tuve la impresión que Wybot temía que lo analizaran a él, por eso necesitaba ese distanciamiento físico y emocional del interrogado.

A veces Wybot y Maigret se cruzaban por los pasillos de Palais de Justice. Maigret algo descuidado en el vestir, Wybot alicatado como un gangster. Se saludaban con una ligera inclinación de cabeza. Maigret lo olvidaba a los dos minutos. A Wybot le quedaba un regusto amargo todo el día porque la prensa había hecho de Maigret un héroe de París y de él un Fouché. Con los años, Maigret envejeció y se dedicaba al huerto y a jugar a la belote en el bar de Meung-sur-Loire. Wybot se hizo anacrónico, cuidaba rosas de jardín y se dedicaba a la acupuntura.

EN LONDRES

Misteriosa coincidencia de dos envenenamientos

Londres, 3, 10 noche. (Crónica radiotelegráfica de nuestro corresponsal.) — ¿Constituye el reciente fallecimiento de un inglés en Barcelona la clave de la muerte de otro inglés, Samuel Alexander Braun, en Boulogne, en circunstancias casi paralelas? La Prensa británica lleva ya dos días buscando a tientas una coincidencia fuera de lo corriente..., pero sin llegar a nada tangible.

He aquí los hechos conocidos. El jueves de la semana pasada, Samuel Alexander Braun, de cincuenta y cuatro años de edad, húngaro de nacimiento y nacionalizado británico, fué hallado en grave estado, a consecuencia de un envenenamiento ocasionado por la ingestión de una droga, en un pequeño hotel de Boulogne. Se averiguó que pocos días antes había estado en Inglaterra, procedente de Viena, y al parecer regresaba a la capital austríaca, adonde había escrito que pensaba llegar en breve. De Calais se trasladó a Boulogne. Allí, como queda dicho, se le encontró en cama, gravemente enfermo, con un tubo vacío de píldoras soporíferas al lado. Dos días más tarde murió en el hospital sin haber recobrado el conocimiento. Su pasaporte había desaparecido. Resultó, asimismo, que las tres direcciones que había facilitado durante su estancia en Boulogne eran falsas.

Pasemos ahora al inglés que murió en circunstancias un tanto similares en Barcelona. Se llamaba Ernest Weston, y, por lo que dice la Prensa inglesa, existía una cierta relación entre los dos individuos; algunos periódicos incluso han dicho que cruzaron juntos en el mismo barco el Canal de la Mancha. Puede que así fuese. Quizá arrojen más luz sobre estos puntos las investigaciones que se realizan en Barcelona. Weston vivía en una pequeña pensión, y el lunes o el martes de esta semana —las noticias al respecto no lo concretan bien— fué hallado muerto en su cama. Había fallecido también por envenenamiento causado por la ingestión de una droga. Se informa, asimismo, que, en cierto modo, estaba relacionado con el comercio de diamantes.

Aquí es donde empieza a resultar interesante la similitud entre ambos casos, ya que se encontró en poder de Braun, en Boulogne, un instrumento de lapidar diamantes y un diamante de talla de repuesto.

Acaso lo más fantástico de todo este caso de Boulogne es el hecho de que la policía tiene un cadáver pero carece de identificación sobre su personalidad, excepto el nombre del individuo tal como lo dió al llegar. Su pasaporte ha desaparecido misteriosamente, de modo que no es absurdo imaginar que cuando se efectúe la inhumación, el hombre que vaya en el féretro no sea el individuo que la policía cree. Esto es poco verosímil, pero no imposible.

Habida cuenta de lo aficionados que somos a los asuntos misteriosos de esta clase — ya que tales cosas son tan ajenas a nuestra monótona vida cotidiana —, nada tiene de raro que el caso haya despertado extraordinario interés, sobre todo en lo que se refiere a la posibilidad de que exista alguna relación entre los dos hechos. En ambos casos parece que se trata de un simple suicidio o quizá de una muerte accidental, pero a juzgar por la Prensa británica es más bien una historia de crímenes.

Por regla general se descartan las coincidencias por considerarlas improbables, si no imposibles; pero lo cierto es que cuando las coincidencias se producen en la realidad, ésta resulta tener más «inventiva» que los escritores de obras de ficción. El interés principal en el presente caso de posible coincidencia radica en Braun. La policía local ha puesto en antecedentes de todo el asunto a la policía internacional. Ahora hay que esperar los acontecimientos, si llegan a producirse.

Varios periódicos dan hoy considerable relieve a este caso. Algunos de ellos insinúan que Braun era quizá agente de alguna organización dedicada a contribuir a la evasión de refugiados de países situados más allá del «telón de acero» y que su reciente viaje a Inglaterra estaba relacionado con esto. — John BROWN.

INVESTIGACIONES EN BARCELONA POR LA MUERTE DE UN INGLES

Barcelona 4. Se verificó el entierro del súbdito inglés Westen Ernest, que falleció en el Hospital Clínico la noche del 29 al 30 del pasado enero, a consecuencia, se supone, de intoxicación. Parece ser que el Juzgado trató de inquirir si después del 15 de diciembre, última fecha que aparece en el pasaporte del muerto como entrado en España, estuvo en el Consulado y notificó su estancia en Barcelona y lugar de la misma, ya que hay un paréntesis entre el 15 de diciembre, fecha de su llegada, con el 21 de enero, fecha en que se presentó en la pensión de la calle nueva de San Francisco, y durante este intervalo de tiempo nada se sabe de las actividades del muerto.

Al mismo tiempo, el Juzgado de guardia ha oficiado a la Policía para que practique gestiones acerca de las actividades del aludido Westen en los días indicados anteriormente y si el muerto en Boulogne Sur Mer, apellidado Brown, que falleció el mismo día, a la misma hora y, al parecer, por idénticas causas que Westen, había estado en Barcelona y había habido algún contacto entre ellos.

La Policía verifica investigaciones con el fin de poder esclarecer el hecho.

Se espera el dictamen del laboratorio acerca de las vísceras del interfecto para saber exactamente las causas de su muerte.—Cifra.

M.I.5 joins 3-nation spy probe

From MARGARET SHIPLEY

BOULOGNE, Saturday.

Two men found dying in hotel rooms in Boulogne and Barcelona of the same drug may have taken to their graves part of the Burgess and Maclean secret.

Both are believed to have been international spies.

And last night, as the police of France and Spain compared the two deaths, M.I.5 and Scotland Yard tried to clear up the London end of the mystery.

The man who died in Boulogne was Samuel Alexander Braun, a naturalised Briton. Because he died without identity papers he was buried in an unmarked grave.

Officially he is A MAN WHO NEVER WAS.

They were seen together

The man who died in Barcelona was Ernest Weston. International police have found two links between the men.

They were both in Zurich in 1953 when Melinda, wife of missing diplomat Donald Maclean, and her children slipped away from there behind the Iron Curtain. They may have helped her.

And they were seen together on the Calais steamer on the afternoon of January 25. Braun left the Paris boat train here. Weston arrived in Barcelona the next morning. Their deaths were both due to an overdose of the same tablets—a German preparation of the drug luminol—and each had only four tablets left.

These are the almost identical stories of the deaths of the two men:

On Tuesday, January 25, BRAUN engaged a porter at Boulogne town station to carry his bags to the Hotel Metropole, which has been closed for two years.

He settled for the small Hotel Nouvel in a back street, where he filled in a registration form in the name "Bawn," but he signed it "Braun."

The signature was heavily run together but the capital B was unmistakable. He gave his address as News-street, Birmingham.

He did not leave the hotel until 2 p.m. on Thursday, Jan. 27, when he exchanged German and Austrian currency for 7,000 French francs at a bank.

He produced a passport in the name of Braun, and gave an address in King-street, London. At 10 p.m. he returned to the hotel.

False address

Next day, at noon, a chambermaid found him in a coma, a half-empty luminol bottle at his side. He died next night without regaining consciousness.

Scotland Yard have found no trace of such a man at any of these addresses.

Police are asking:

Whom did he meet after leaving the bank and returning to his hotel at 10 p.m.?

Why should an intending suicide carry a bag containing 14 pairs of socks, 20 shirts, and four suits?

Where is his passport?

Braun may have passed his papers—voluntarily or under pressure—to someone who now will never be able to use them.

Did the same person exert the same kind of pressure to persuade Braun to end his life?

WESTON, the Barcelona Chief of Police, said over the telephone tonight, booked a room in a small pension, the Anita.

Always drunk

He had most of his meals out, told no one of his business and kept to himself most of the time. He would arrive back at his hotel around 5 a.m. or 6 a.m., always drunk.

On February 1 the staff noticed that he had not appeared from his room that day. They found him sprawled across the bed in a deep coma.

He was taken to hospital where he died that night. He had only about £8, but his travellers' cheques were missing.

Members of the hotel staff said that a blond, Russian-looking stranger had called twice at the hotel, and asked for Senor Weston. He refused to leave either name or message, but said he would return.

Scotland Yard has asked for a full report.

Both Braun and Weston are believed to have been "double agents" for both Britain and the Soviet, although the authorities in this country refused to acknowledge their existence.

SUCESOS

De la muerte misteriosa de un súbdito inglés

El Juzgado núm. 10 y la Policía siguen practicando activas diligencias para esclarecer las circunstancias en que se produjo la muerte del súbdito inglés, mister Ernes Western, ocurrida en Barcelona, y que se relaciona con la del húngaro nacionalizado en Inglaterra, mister Samuel Brown, acaecida en Boulogne-sur-Mer (Francia). De las averiguaciones practicadas hasta el momento se desprende que mister Western y mister Brown cruzaron juntos el Canal de la Mancha a bordo del buque «Canterbury», y que en Calais se separaron para seguir solos viaje hacia las poblaciones en que después fallecieron. Parece ser que habían dado a sus respectivos hoteles la misma dirección imaginaria: m. 21 New's Stret, Birmingham, lo que parece constituir un indicio de que ambas muertes están relacionadas entre sí.

Parece ser que el interfecto, desde su llegada a Barcelona el día 15 de diciembre último, se hospedó en una casa de la calle del Doctor Dou pasando luego a otra de la calle de la Ciudad hasta que, fialmente, se domicilió en la pensión de la calle Nueva de San Francisco. Según informes recogidos, se ha comprobado que se retiraba a altas horas de la madrugada, en estado de embriaguez, y que frecuentaba diversos establecimientos de los alrededores de la calle de Escudillers en los que trabó conocimiento con un camarero y luego con otro joven de 22 años, tornero de oficio, y nacido en Bruselas, que por conocer varios idiomas le servía de intérprete.

Weston gastaba con frecuencia bromas a sus amigos y recientemente dijo a alguno de ellos que estaría poco en este mundo y que el lunes próximo se informarían de su muerte coincidiendo ésta con la llegada de cierta dama inglesa a unas islas del Pacífico.

La policía trabaja activamente en sus investigaciones para aclarar cuanto se refiere a las circunstancias que rodean el misterio de la muerte del indicado súbdito británico.

 La Vanguardia, 4 febrero 1955, p. 14, pero, según ABC, 1 febrero,1955, p. 22 y La Vanguardia, 1 febrero 1955, p. 17 había sido el dueño de la pensión.

 "Según su pasaporte, Ernest Western (sic) había llegado a Barcelona por primera vez el 4 de noviembre pasado y pocos días después regresó a Inglaterra. Volvió a Barcelona el 15 de dieciembre, en avión, y no se movió de nuestro país hasta el momento de su muerte." (La Vanguardia, 8 febrero 1955, p. 13)

Ernest Weston ocurrida en Barcelona, ha recibido una comunicación del «Foreign Office», interesándose por la práctica de nuevas diligencias. Suplica el escrito que el Juzgado se ponga en relación con la policía de Scotland Yard. A tal efecto es posible que se desplacen algunos agentes de la policía británica a Barcelona. Manifiesta la comunicación recibida, que el muerto se llamaba Ernest Davis, y estaba domiciliado en Birmingham, 23, Beleber Lames."* Ni esta dirección ni las palabras existen. Lo más parecido puede ser la calle "Belvidere Lane" de Birmingham, pero no es probable.

HA MUERTO EN BARCELONA UN SUBDITO INGLES

Barcelona 31. En una pensión de la calle Nueva de San Francisco, el dueño de la misma encontró sobre la cama y en estado comatoso al huésped mister Westen Ernest, de cuarenta y ocho años de edad, ingeniero, natural de Birmingham.

Según diagnóstico del médico, llamado urgentemente, sufría intoxicación por haber ingerido alguna sustancia tóxica o bien por abuso de algún medicamento.

Conducido al Hospital Clínico, dejó de existir poco después de su ingreso. El Juzgado número 10, que instruye diligencias, ordenó el traslado del cadáver al Instituto Anatómico Forense.

En poder del fallecido se encontraron 300 pesetas y documentos que han sido examinados por el Consulado inglés en Barcelona, donde no se había presentado el finado el día 24 de los corrientes, fecha en que llegó a esta capital.

También se encontraron algunas cartas y fotografías.—Mencheta.

El misterioso caso de la muerte, por intoxicación, de dos súbditos ingleses

Continúan realizándose laboriosas investigaciones

En las activas pesquisas que el Juzgado y la Policía llevan a cabo para descubrir el misterio que envuelve la muerte del súbdito inglés Ernest Western, en una pensión de la calle Nueva de San Francisco, todas las diligencias practicadas hasta el momento no arrojan nueva luz sobre las actividades que desarrolló en nuestra ciudad Mr. Western hasta el momento de su muerte.

Los interrogatorios de las personas que con él se relacionaron no dan pie, al parecer, a sospechar que el finado se hubiera dedicado a actividades delictivas. Entre las muchas personas que se relacionaron con Mr. Western figura un camarero llamado Angel Mandeu, quien manifestó que conoció al interfecto a mediados de diciembre pasado, en el establecimiento en que presta sus servicios, donde se hizo popular como gran bebedor y llamó la atención por el humor algo brusco que tenía cuando estaba beodo. En sus momentos de lucidez era agradable, si bien poco comunicativo. El camarero en cuestión trabó amistad con el cliente, que comenzó a enseñarle el inglés. Añade que en el tiempo que duró su relación, el extranjero se había cambiado de una pensión de la calle de la Ciudad a la que ocupaba en el momento de su muerte. También se desprende de sus declaraciones que Western le dijo que había trabajado en un hotel de Londres y que se hallaba en España en período de vacaciones. Antes de trasladarse a nuestra ciudad había estado unos días en Valencia. Parece ser que el inglés se mostraba unas veces triste y solía decir —después de haber ingerido el contenido de algunas copas— que sus días estaban contados y que debía morir en fecha próxima.

Entre otros figura también como testigo un joven de unos 22 años, tornero de oficio y nacido en Bruselas, pero de padres españoles, el cual habla varios idiomas. Parece ser que este joven sirvió de intérprete en los bares que frecuentaba el interfecto.

Todos los testigos coinciden casi exactamente en sus manifestaciones con lo que dijo el camarero, si bien se desprende de todo ello como hecho curioso y quizá significativo que Ernest, al anunciar su próxima muerte, dijo que ésta aparecería en los periódicos el día 31 de enero, coincidiendo la noticia con la llegada de cierta dama inglesa procedente de unas islas del Pacífico.

Se tienen también noticias del curso de las averiguaciones de la Policía de Boulogne sobre la muerte de Mr. Brown, en aquella población y en circunstancias muy parecidas a las del que falleció en Barcelona. Un amigo íntimo de aquél ha declarado en dicha población francesa que se suicidó por dificultades de carácter económico. Se sabe también que el interfecto había pertenecido a la organización de evadidos residentes al otro lado del «telón de acero». Ello coincide, al parecer, con declaraciones del interesado en las que manifestaba tener contactos con habitantes de los países satélites y que era conocido por los servicios de información occidentales.

Sigue sin encontrarse el pasaporte que Brown exhibió a su llegada a Boulogne, que habían visto tres personas, y que ha desaparecido misteriosamente. También busca la policía francesa a un hombre y una mujer con los que aquél fué visto en los barrios marítimos de dicha ciudad.

El director del Laboratorio Nacional de Toxicología nos ruega que hagamos constar que en dicho centro sanitario no se ha efectuado el análisis del frasco de aspirinas y otros productos hallados en la habitación de Mr. Western y que no se han recibido muestras de los aludidos productos.

(1) El episodio de contaminación y niebla más grave ocurrido en el Reino Unido en los años 50 fue el de la Great Smog o Big Smoke entre el 5 y el 9 de diciembre de 1952. Las cifra de víctimas mencionada en serie parlamentaria por el Lieut. Colonel Lipton fue de 6000 muertos y 25000 afectados. "Coal: Commons Sitting of 16 February 1953. http://hansard.millbanksystems.com/commons/1953/feb/16/nutty-slack, pero estudios posteriores elevan la cifra a 12000 víctimas mortales (Michelle L. Bell; Devra L. Davis; Tony Fletcher (January 2004). "A Retrospective Assessment of Mortality from the London Smog Episode of 1952: The Role of Influenza and Pollution". Environ Health Perspect. 112 (1):pp. 6–8). La contaminación del 16 de enero de 1955 se cree que produjo 1000 muertes, aunque no hay estudios conclusivos sobre ella.

On 16 January 1955, a high-level smoke layer caused a period of day darkness. This particular event occurred when extensive instrumentation was available. It is probably a reasonable model for earlier occurrences, so it is worth examining in some detail. The weather pattern was characterized by a deep depression with rather weak pressure gradients near the centre (giving light winds) and very active fronts, which gave rise to dense clouds. Here was fog and a temperature inversion in the lower layers of the atmosphere. In the morning light, winds carried the smoke from London to the north-west. The smoke was unable to disperse because the inversion prevented vertical mixing. Estimates suggest that the original smoke layer was some 175 m thick. The smoke reached the Chilterns just at the time when a cold front crossed them. It is possible that the smoke-laden air was lifted vertically in the vigorous convergence at the front. This would have stacked the smoky air in a vertical column more than a kilometre thick. Reports from aircraft suggest that the cloud layer was continuous and deep, stretching from 400–4000 m altitude. About midday, the smoke parcel began to pile up over the Chilterns. Shortly afterwards the wind reversed direction and gradually increased in strength. This carried the air, with the extremely dense pillar of smoke and cloud above it, back across London. The light intensity on a sunny January day in the capital would have been about 36 kilolux, while illumination on a heavily overcast January day would fall about 7 kilolux. On the examined day at about 13.15 hours, the light level dropped from 7 kilolux to less than 0.03 kilolux. Almost total darkness followed for six minutes. People who experienced this phenomenon said it seemed as if the world was coming to an end. "Operation 'Snowdrop' The cold winter of 1955

by Philip Eden

'Operation Snowdrop' was the name given to the military operation to deliver food and medical supplies to snowbound districts in Scotland exactly fifty years ago. The RAF operated fixed-wing aircraft out of Kinloss primarily to drop animal fodder, and the Royal Navy flew helicopters from Wick to carry supplies to villages and farms cut off by drifts over 30 feet high. The services flew nearly 300 sorties in all to provide relief to communities in Shetland, Orkney, Caithness, Sutherland, Ross and Cromarty, and Inverness-shire.

The winter of 1955 was the coldest and snowiest between the two Big Freezes of 1947 and 1963, but in many parts of the Scotland it was reckoned to be the worst of the lot. Severe weather lasted from January 4th-22nd, and returned from February 8th until March 11th. The snow in northern Scotland arrived on a gale force northerly wind, and even when the snow stopped falling the wind continued to blow it into deep drifts thwarting all attempts to clear roads, most of which remained impassable until well into March.

Level snow lay 60cm deep by February 23 over the northern half of Scotland, and was measured at 90cm deep at Drummuir Castle, southeast of Elgin. The wintry weather extended to England and Wales for long periods too, especially during the second half of February with a dramatic snowstorm in Cornwall during the closing days of the month.

During the same winter one particular meteorological event scared the living daylights out of Londoners literally. The date was January 16, 1955, and families all over the capital were sitting down to Sunday lunch. The Billy Cotton Band Show was on the wireless.

It had been a gloomy morning, but at 1.15pm light levels dropped abruptly to less than one-thousandth of that equivalent to a fine January day. In other words it had become completely dark in the middle of the day.

It must have been a very spooky experience. Newspaper switchboards were inundated, thousands of 999 calls were made, and afterwards people said they thought the world was coming to an end or they have dropped the bombö.

The cause of this extreme example of day darkness was not difficult to determine. The Clean Air Act was still a year in the future and London’s atmosphere remained heavily polluted. A gentle south-easterly airflow affected the Home Counties during the morning, carrying London’s smoke towards the Chiltern Hills where it lay trapped beneath a layer of warm air aloft. Then a strong north-westerly wind set in, sweeping the polluted air before it, rather like rolling up a carpet. By the time it crossed London again, the layer of smoke and pollution was 1000 metres deep, sufficient to cut out every last glimmer of daylight. http://www.weatheronline.co.uk/reports/philip-eden/The-cold-winter-of-1955.htm

¿HUIR DEL HURACÁN? (OTRA VEZ)

¿Huir del huracán?

Yo crecí en una casa de adobe y piedra, fresca en verano y cálida en invierno. Había un fuego bajo y nos solíamos sentar alrededor a descansar: mirábamos las llamas que nunca son rojas ni amarillas ni azules, sino de todos los matices, de todos los colores, y al rato, la respiración se acompasaba... hablábamos y nos escuchábamos, pero no para huir del silencio o del vacío, porque se oía la leña crepitar y el aire que entraba por el tiro de la chimenea. Al arder la madera, se aromaba la cocina con la resina quemada. Envueltas en brasas, se asaban castañas, patatas, y en el puchero, sobre unas trébedes, cocía lentamente el potaje. En verano refrescábamos la casa abriendo puertas y ventanas para hacer corriente de aire al caer la noche, y por la mañana temprano cerrábamos bien. Mis padres habían llegado a América con sus padres desde Europa, pero éramos tan americanos como los descendientes del Myflower aunque fuéramos pobres.

Cuando me casé con un orgulloso Teniente del Ejército, creí mejorar porque nos fuimos a vivir a una casa nueva, limpia, sin fuego bajo que ahumara las paredes, que eran delgadas. Para el frío había calefacción y para el calor, aire acondicionado.

Vivíamos cerca de la base, y todos los niños jugaban a ser héroes y soldados como sus padres. Johnny y Patrick eran gemelos, nunca se separaban, risueños y fuertes como el acero y besucones y mimosos como bebés, me embromaban diciendo que su padre era mi novio y que yo me sonrojaba cuando escuchaba la llave en la cerradura.

Mis hijos fueron a la Universidad... y fueron unos maravillosos estudiantes que traían notables y sobresalientes, pero siempre tenían tiempo para salir de excursión o tocar con su grupo de folk, que sonaba como una carraca...

Hasta que unos malnacidos decidieron enviarlos a matar y a morir en Vietnam.

Johnny no volvió y Patrick llegó sin brazos, y tan diferente que llegué a dudar que fuera él durante las tres semanas que estuvo entre la vida y la muerte en el Hospital Militar. Le dieron el alta y lo trajimos a casa para "recuperarse". El brazo derecho era un muñón rojizo a la altura del codo y el brazo izquierdo había desaparecido junto con una parte del hombro. Al llegar a casa se sentó en su cama, y miró alrededor como ido. Luego vino a la cocina y nos miró a su padre y a mí como si no supiera quienes éramos, con las pupilas desenfocadas por culpa de las malditas anfetaminas, que les daban a los soldados para quitarles el miedo, la sed, el hambre y cualquier rasgo humano.

Nos dijo en voz baja:

—¿Sabéis que he encontrado la solución para no orinarme encima? Y sonrió dulcemente, se acercó y puso su cabeza en mi hombro para que lo abrazara. Su padre nos abrazó a los dos y rompimos a llorar. Patrick, entonces, en ese preciso momento, volvió a ser el muchacho que se había ido: su rostro se relajó y nos dijo la frase de un cuento infantil, que se había convertido en una broma entre nosotros:

—"¡Eh! ¿No son estos los valientes que asustan al miedo, al pánico y al terror?"

Nos sonrió con ternura y dijo —"Me voy a dar una vuelta" Ya no dudé, sólo podía ser él.

Y nunca volvió. Se suicidó tirándose desde el puente viejo al paso del tren.

Enfermó mi marido y vendí la casa para pagar el tratamiento y la hospitalización. Murió en el hospital y no se tuvo que enterar que no teníamos casa a la que regresar, porque en nuestro país, una enfermedad se lleva por delante los ahorros de toda una vida. Los que habían combatido en Vietnam hacía años que eran parias para la Administración que había declarado la guerra y se les escatimó todo, menos la humillación. Como ahora ocurre con los que mueren o vuelven mutilados de Irak, de Afganistán; evitan hasta las fotos de los cientos de ataúdes que llegan clandestinos, para ser enterrados sin ceremonias. Y a las familias se les exige que lloren a escondidas, como si hubieran muerto en una reyerta de borrachos.

Ahora vivo en una caravana vieja varada en medio de la nada, y hace años que no tengo coche adonde engancharla. Soy "basura blanca".

Cuando tengo frío o se me atraviesa la congoja en la garganta, me abrigo con la bandera de los Estados Unidos, la que estuvo sobre el ataúd de Johnny, que me entregaron después de su funeral.

A mi marido, a mis hijos, y a todos los patriotas que creyeron que luchaban por América esos malnacidos les estafaron su buena fe, su sentido del deber, del honor y de la decencia. ¡Maldita sea su estirpe! ...Y a mí no me han dejado ni el miedo para huir del huracán.

«TIERRA, AGUA, AIRE Y FUEGO» EN JULES VERNE

Los amigos de Graphiclassic en su cuarta entrega de álbumes ilustrados y estudios literarios ofrecen un número extraordinario de 276 páginas dedicado a las obras de Jules Verne.

Si ya nos sorprendieron con los volúmenes sobre Moby Dick, La isla del tesoro o el volumen dedicado al gran historietista Antonio Hernández Palacios, ahora lo hacen con una segunda entrega, mucho más rica y entretenida que la primera, sobre el mundo literario e iconográfico de Jules Verne. El libro se subdivide en cuatro partes. Una primera centrada en la literatura verniana en general. La segunda consiste en una amplia glosa de sus principales obras, organizada a su vez bajo el prisma de los cuatro elementos (Tierra, Agua, Aire y Fuego). Le sigue una tercera que muestra la relación de estas creaciones vernianas con el mundo de la ilustración, el cine o el cómic. Por último, un Post Scriptum en el que se cuentan infinidad de historias y anécdotas sobre el autor y sus trabajos literarios menos conocidos. Todo ello compone un amplísimo telar en el que se entretejen literatura e imágenes para presentarnos al mundo de Jules Verne de una forma completamente novedosa: de Viaje al centro de la Tierra a Miguel Strogoff; de 20.000 leguas de viaje submarino a La vuelta al mundo en 80 días; o de La isla misteriosa a Viaje a la Luna y mucho más.

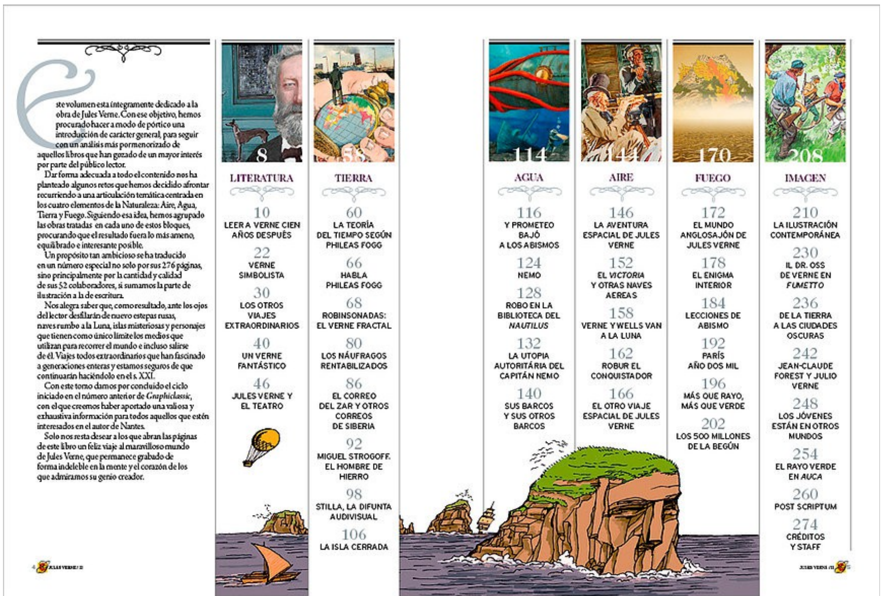
Este libro es una creación conjunta en la que han colaborado 52 autores, tanto en la escritura como en la iconografía. Dentro de la primera podemos encontrar desde alguno de los mayores expertos mundiales en la obra de Verne —como Volker Dehs o Ariel Pérez— hasta primeras figuras literarias en el panorama español como Fernando Aramburu, Alberto Manguel, Raúl Guerra Garrido, José Jiménez Lozano o Fernando Savater.



Este volumen está íntegramente dedicado a la obra de Jules Verne. Con ese objetivo, hemos procurado hacer a modo de pórtico una introducción de carácter general, para seguir con un análisis más pormenorizado de aquellos libros que han gozado de un mayor interés por parte del público lector.

Dar forma adecuada a todo el contenido nos ha planteado algunos retos que hemos decidido afrontar recurriendo a una articulación temática centrada en los cuatro elementos de la Naturaleza: Aire, Agua, Tierra y Fuego. Siguiendo esa idea, hemos agrupado las obras tratadas en cada uno de estos bloques, procurando que el resultado fuera lo más ameno, equilibrado e interesante posible.

Un propósito tan ambicioso se ha traducido en un número especial no solo por sus 276 páginas, sino principalmente por la cantidad y calidad de sus 52 colaboradores, si sumamos la parte de ilustración a la de escritura.

Nos alegra saber que, como resultado, ante los ojos del lector desfilarán de nuevo estepas rusas, naves rumbo a la Luna, islas misteriosas y personajes que tienen como único límite los medios que utilizan para recorrer el mundo e incluso salirse de él. Viajes todos extraordinarios que han fascinado a generaciones enteras y estamos seguros de que continuarán haciéndolo en el s. XXI.

Con este tomo damos por concluido el ciclo iniciado en el número anterior de Graphiclassic, con el que creemos haber aportado una valiosa y exhaustiva información para todos aquellos que estén interesados en el autor de Nantes.

Solo nos resta desear a los que abran las páginas de este libro un feliz viaje al maravilloso mundo de Jules Verne, que permanece grabado de forma indeleble en la mente y el corazón de los que admiramos su genio creador.

VOLKER DEHS Posiblemente el mayor especialista mundial en la literatura de Verne, nos ha escrito un texto excepcional sobre sus obras de teatro. Muchas gracias maestro. Pág. 44

Nuestro colaborador y conocido verniano, Javier Coria, escribe sobre una de las novelas más enigmáticas y proféticas de Verne, Los 500 millones de la Bagún, donde algunos ven la prefiguración de Hitler. También nos cuenta en el Post Scriptum, junto a Guillem Díez Guirao, cosas tan curiosas como una pequeña entrevista con el geodesta croata que descubrió el lugar más aislado de la Tierra y que bautizó con un nombre verniano, sobre la teoría del fin del mundo y que los científicos también le han puesto el nombre de Verne, o sobre un misterioso sonido submarino de ultra-baja frecuencia, de origen desconocido hasta hoy, y que fue captado por los micrófonos submarinos instalados en la época de la guerra fría. Curiosamente, en el lugar donde se captó el sonido, situaron dos escritores a sus personajes. ¿Será el grito del capitán Nemo? ¿Será el vestigio sonoro de la ciudad sumergida de La llamada de Cthulhu de Lovecraft? Tendrán que leerlo.

Si hay algo realmente sorprendente en este libro es el apartado gráfico, con una extraordinaria portada de la francesa Rébecca Dautremer, considerada la mejor ilustradora en la actualidad. Esto se completa con ilustraciones, en su mayoría inéditas, de lo más granado del panorama gráfico español, como Fernando Vicente, Miguel Calatayud, Antonio Hernández Palacios, Ana Juan, Federico del Barrio, LPO y Ulises Culebro, entre otros. En fin, contra viento y marea, con un panorama cultural raquítico, con suplementos literarios que sólo hablan de las novedades de sus editoriales, esfuerzos como los que están haciendo en Graphiclassic, en sí una asociación cultural sin ánimo de lucro, son dignos de citar, y aquí lo hacemos.

No quiero ser aguafiestas, pero siento la obligación moral de informaros que así como se han planteado serias dudas acerca de la veracidad de la llegada a la luna de la misión Apollo XI, existen evidencias de que Barbicane, Ardan y Nichols sí habrían felizmente alunizado e incluso Ardan habría pronunciado, con indisimulable acento francés, esta simpática frasecilla:"es un pequeño paso para un hombre, pero un gran salto para la humanidad".

Ahora que la dichosa guerra fría es solo el alegre recuerdo de una gamberrada del pasado, no tiene más sentido ocultar que aquel "misterioso sonido submarino de ultra-baja frecuencia, de origen desconocido hasta hoy, y que fue captado por los micrófonos submarinos instalados en la época de la guerra fría" no fue otra cosa que la pedorreta que solté mientras buceaba buscando mejillones por la zona. Un mal día lo tiene cualquiera....

MIS HÉROES: SANTIAGO PINETTA

Santiago Pinetta en el metro Carlos Gardel de Buenos Aires.
Foto TN.com.ar

Ya dije que los héroes genuinos no son musculosos e invencibles, no tienen el gesto hosco y fiero, ni resisten una buena paliza sin despeinarse. Son frágiles, tienen más derrotas que victorias, caen a plomo cuando los derriba la fuerza bruta, y parecen tener algún contencioso con el peine y los peluqueros; pero vuelven a estar en la brecha una y otra vez, dispuestos a que les zurren una vez más por defender lo que piensan, lo que creen, y lo que aman.

Santiago Pinetta y su investigación y denuncia del caso IBM-Banco Nación, en Argentina, publicada en su libro «La Nación robada» forman parte de las lecciones magistrales y heroicas del periodismo mundial (1):

–"Por suerte, un salesiano de 80 años aceptó que lo imprimiera la Imprenta de Don Bosco. Se publicó en febrero de 1994 y se vendió en librerías y quioscos, y sin embargo, el acuerdo IBM-Banco Nación se firmó el mes siguiente, en marzo de 1994. Ningún medio comentó el libro, salvo la revista Humor."

–¿La Justicia actuó?

–No. Yo les regalé un ejemplar a varios jueces federales, pero como no se iniciaba ninguna investigación, redacté una denuncia judicial y el 18 de mayo de 1994 se la entregué en mano a un fiscal de Cámara, que la leyó y me dijo: Retirala, esto te va a llevar a la Chacarita. Pero se la dejé. Le tocó al juez federal Adolfo Bagnasco y, ¿qué hizo? La puso en un cajón. Pero ahí nomás, en mayo de 1994, empezó a cambiar mi vida. Me golpean en Loria y Rivadavia.

—¿Cuándo empezó a moverse la causa?

—El 16 de septiembre de 1995. Ese día pasaron varias cosas: desembarcó gente del FBI y allanó IBM por esa ley norteamericana que impide a sus empresas coimear. Y tal vez por eso, ese día Bagnasco fue a buscar documentos al Banco Nación. Y a las 18 de ese día sufrí el segundo atentado: en Callao, entre Rivadavia y Mitre, me pasó por arriba un taxi. Me lo tiraron encima. Me llevaron a la Clínica Colegiales con 14 fracturas, y allí me acordé de lo que me había dicho el fiscal. Estuve internado siete meses.

—Luego lo tajearon.

—Antes hubo un tercer atentado en 1996. Armaron una falsa entrevista y, cuando los recibí en casa, me dieron una trompada con esos puños de hierro y perdí los dientes. El cuarto fue el 31 de julio de 1996. Caminaba por Corrientes cuando me tiraron al suelo. Me desperté en el Hospital Ramos Mejía. Tenía tajeado "IBM" en el pecho con un bisturí. Adrián Pelacchi, el jefe de la Federal, dijo que yo me lo escribí." (2)

El periodista Santiago Pinetta, en 1995, en el sanatorio en el que le curan las heridas en el pecho con las siglas IBM. Foto clarin.com.ar

Antes de eso, la muerte ya le había rondado:

"El 16 de junio de 1955, 34 aviones de la Marina de Guerra, muchos con la insignia Cristo vence, bombardearon y ametrallaron la Casa Rosada y la Plaza de Mayo con el fin de derrocar al presidente Juan D. Perón. En ese entonces, Pinetta trabajaba para el diario Clarín y le tocó cubrir el bautismo de fuego de la Aviación Naval Argentina, que dejó como saldo 364 muertos y fue el preludio de la Revolución Libertadora, tres meses más tarde.

Con el golpe de Estado de marzo 1976, la dictadura militar, autodenominada Proceso de Reorganización Nacional, inició un régimen de violencia indiscriminada, persecuciones, represión ilegal, tortura sistematizada, desaparición forzada de personas, manipulación de la información y terrorismo de Estado.

En esa época, trabajaba para agencias de noticias extranjeras y medios periodísticos del exterior. En noviembre de 1976, un grupo de tareas lo secuestró porque su nombre figuraba en alguna agenda. Con cierta cotidianeidad entrevistaba líderes políticos y de organizaciones guerrilleras. Lo mantuvieron en cautiverio en Campo de Mayo hasta febrero de 1977, estuvo detenido alrededor de 100 días.

"Recibía torturas como todo hijo de vecino", reconoce el periodista. La mayor parte del tiempo estuvo encerrado desnudo en una pequeña celda. Tres veces sufrió descargas de corriente de una picana eléctrica. Finalmente, la perinola le dio a favor, en unos meses los militares comprobaron que no tenía vínculos con grupos subversivos y lo liberaron en la autopista Richieri.(2)

Hace unos días supimos que Santiago Pinetta, a sus 83 años, desde hace más de diez años, mendiga en el metro de la estación Carlos Gardel para poder vivir.

Sería bueno pedirle amablemente al gobierno de Mauricio Macri (su twitter es @CasaRosada) y a Mauricio Macri en persona (@mauriciomacri)

Y secundar esta petición en Change.org, dirigida a Mauricio Macri, Presidencia de la Nación, Casa Rosada, Balcarce 50, C1064AAB, Ciudad Autónoma de Buenos Aires, Buenos Aires, teléfono (11) 4344-3600. e.mail secretariageneral@presidencia.gov.ar para que se ocupe de solucionar esta sangrante injusticia.

¡Pero ya! Porque gracias a hombres como Santiago Pinetta somos capaces de comprender qué es la dignidad humana y lo que significa. Y son tan escasos...

AMOR POR LA VERDAD... ¿La verdad de lo que la mass media muestra? ¿La pseudo verdad que moviliza emociones sobre la superficialidad de una única denuncia de 1994? Cierta por cierto, la otra verdad es que este señor padre de más de diez hijos de muchas mujeres, nunca pasó alimentos, es un jugador compulsivo que volvió locas de remate a sus mujeres, también recibió ayuda de mucha gente durante mucho tiempo y se peleó con mucha gente (Bingo, casino flotante, hipódromo hace años)... habría que preguntarse porque no lo banca ninguno de sus hijos... bah, hay uno que parece que lo banca hace más de treinta años...... Hombre violento, querulante, paranoico.... nunca se atrevió a denunciar a su hermano dicen, autor de atrocidades a sus propios hijos... ¿Cómo puede ser posible que un Estado se dedique durante más de 30 años a perseguir a un tipo? ¿Y los demás periodistas que denuncian? Hombre que ha trabajado en muchísimos medios y termina así es por una sola cosa: JUGADOR, LUDÓPATA. Un héroe se dedica a salvar las vidas de sus hijos, no ha destruirlos... y DENUNCIAR LO QUE HAY QUE DENUNCIAR

Tiene dos hijos en Brasil que no le dan bola (él no se preocupó en tener vínculos con ellos cuando la ex se fue huyendo de Pinetta)... Tiene otro que lo odia (creo que Fernando se llama, trabajará en el GCABA)... Después hay otra hija que lo quiso volver a ver y hasta le ofreció irse a vivir a Moreno, pero parece que él no quiso porque quiere vivir en Capital... Después viene otro que parece lo banca.... Hay una que es psicóloga, otro pibe que lo ve de vez en cuando, una que murió por paco, otras dos de otra madre (que también huyó) que no lo quieren ver porque el las despreció... Todo esto lo saqué de Internet... hay que saber buscar... DIEZ HIJOS!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

LA NATURALEZA, MADRE CRUDELÍSIMA

"U cumannari é megghiu d'o futtiri"

Los sicilianos aman la naturaleza con la mala leche que les caracteriza, por eso, en cuanto pueden, se compra un terreno lejos de la ciudad, construyen una casa totalmente incongruente con el clima y el paisaje, tirolesa con columnas salomónicas, ventanas de pagoda o lupanar hindú, verjas carcelarias, y estucado veneciano y cemento hasta aburrir.

Alrededor, en lo que había sido campo, bosque, arrasa con cualquier vestigio de vegetación autóctona para poner cesped, arizónicas, adelfas, hortensias y cualquier arbolito exótico que no tenga la mala costumbre de dejar caer hojas en otoño, porque su ideal como paisaje ajardinado es el acceso al tanatorio de la M-30 de Madrid, donde no cabe otra fauna que no sea un perro de considerables dimensiones, completamente desquiciado, y sus amos, que creen que hablar a voces y repetir tontunas indica campechanía.

La humanidad es un error de cálculo de la naturaleza. Y, los sicilianos con casita en el campo, el epítome de lo infrahumano.

TERRORISTAS Y APOLOGÍA DEL TERRORISMO

Toasting Murder: Otto Runge (second from right) and his comrades celebrate the murders of Rosa Luxemburg and Karl Liebknecht with a drink in the Hotel Eden, 15 January 1919. The photo was printed in the Communist 'Die Rote Fahne' newspaper soon after, by the editor Leo Ha habido crugir de dientes entre quienes pasan de vez a cuando por Gatopardo, lo sé: la lista (incompleta) de combatientes del Special Operations Executive, SOE, más larga que un día sin pan, se nos había escamoteado sistemáticamente, dejando la leyenda de unos cuantos románticos al margen de las consignas militares y gubernativas inglesas, que se sacrificaron para ayudar a los resistentes en los paises ocupados por los nazis, en los sabotajes y atentados, y que, como luchadores sin ejercito, actuaron por su propia cuenta al margen de la Convención de Ginebra y las normas de guerra convencionales.

No fue así: fueron miles de hombres y mujeres entrenados y adiestrados en tácticas de guerra no convencional, en el manejo de explosivos, lucha cuerpo a cuerpo, cifrado y transmisión de información, y sabotaje de las comunicaciones enemigas. Luego se ha discutido si fueron tan eficaces como era de esperar, pero nadie discute que fueron útiles, utilizados y necesarios para desgastar al enemigo en una guerra sin cuartel. Muchos cayeron en manos de la Gestapo, y fueron torturados para obtener información (cosa con la que contaban sus instructores, teniendo buen cuidado de desinformarlos a conciencia sobre sus planes inmediatos y futuros) sabiendo que al final serían asesinados sin contemplaciones. Ahora hablamos del SOE, de la resistencia francesa, del maquis, de los partisanos que lucharon contra los nazis con el reverente respeto que merecen los heroes.

La única regla para que una guerra irregular contra el opresor sea legítima y los resistentes heroicos defensores de la libertad es formar parte de los vencedores. De no ser así, hablamos de terroristas y reivindicarlos es hacer apología del terrorismo.

Los resistentes y guerrilleros contra el franquismo no vencieron jamás. Por eso, a estas alturas, en el cuadragésimo aniversario de los últimos fusilados del franquismo no podemos saber quiénes fueron los policías de la Brigada Político-Social que "investigaron" y "resolvieron" quiénes habían de pagar el pato; quiénes fueron los policías y guardias civiles que formaron parte de los pelotones de ejecución como voluntarios, ni sabemos quiénes fueron invitados como público para jalear sus muertes. Tampoco sabemos quiénes fueron los "juristas" que formaron parte los Tribunales Militares y del Tribunal de Orden Público que suspendieron las minimas garantías procesales en los juicios sumarisimos, que condenaron a muerte a cientos de miles desde el final de la guerra civil española, basándose en pruebas y confesiones obtenidas mediante tortura. Eran parte de los vencedores, y por lo tanto, intocables.

La Ley de Memoria Histórica nos permite indagar sobre las víctimas, incluso las que están en zanjas sin nombre; pero no sobre sus torturadores y verdugos. Quizás porque casi todos ellos se pasaron con armas y bagages a la legalidad vigente, como garantes y árbitros de la Constitución de 1978.

Por eso tenemos la Audiencia Nacional y una Ley Mordaza, que no es ni más ni menos que la continuacion del Tribunal de Orden Público franquista, sus leyes de excepción, y unas fuerzas de orden y unos representantes en las instituciones dignos del Magreb de Hassan y Mohamed.

Y todo por creernos que la resistencia pacífica, la melaza mística y el aspartamo emocional es lo fetén, lo elegante, nutre la piel, y nos hace más esbeltos y mas rubios...

ROMANCE DE LA GUARDA CUIDADOSA

34 LA GUARDA CUIDADOSA

Tan alta estaba la luna
    como el sol al mediodía, cuando el conde don Leonardo salió de su celda un día, a buscar un casamiento para tierras de Castilla.
Mirándole está la infanta,
    desde su sala garrida:
—¡Qué buen cuerpo tenéis, conde,
    merecéis tener amiga!
—Siete tengo, mi señora, vos seréis la más querida.
—No te puedo servir, conde,
    que cinco guardas tenía.
La primera guarda era
    un viejo, que no dormía;
la segunda una campana,
    una campana garrida,
como oye alguna ocasión,
    de milagro retañía;
la tercera una leona,
    una leona parida,
una leona que duerme
    debajo la cama mía;

la cuarta un río de sangre ¡Quién por ti lo pasaría!,
y la quinta guarda era
 dos brazos que yo tenía.
¿Cómo yo haré, el buen conde?,
 ¿por dónde te gozaría?
—Ese viejo, que no duerme,
 con vino lo adormecía;
lo que era la campana,
 al suelo la bajaría;
lo que era la leona,
 de carne la hartaría;
lo que es el río de sangre,
 a nado lo pasaría,
y lo que eran vuestros brazos, yo entre ellos dormiría.

Aparte de un conjunto de versiones judeo-españolas del Norte de África, el tema de la doncella guardada, a la que sólo podrá acceder un hombre capaz de vencer los múltiples impedimentos con que se ha tratado de mantenerla en su virginidad, no es de fácil hallazgo en otras ramas de la tradición pan-hispánica. Sin embargo, tuve la fortuna de descubrirlo, en compañía de Álvaro Galmés, en 1948 en la aldea lebaniega de Valdeprado. Plácida, con sus 80 años, se golpeaba ante nosotros la cabeza con las manos y se quejaba amargamente "'to tocha, 'to tocha", intentando atraer en ella el recuerdo del texto tiempo atrás aprendido; pero su memoria se enganchaba continuadamente en un dieciseisílabo, que se le hacía una y otra vez presente, en que la doncella instaba al caballero a iniciar su empresa:

—¡Sal ahora, don Leonardo, sal ahora, por tu vida!

Según su versión, el tema empalmaba con otro, originalmente distinto, propio del romance "Canta, moro, canta, moro".

Cuando, en 1957, saqué del olvido el romance de "La guarda cuidadosa", sólo se había publicado una versión de la tradición portuguesa, procedente de la isla de San Jorge en las Azores, en que el diálogo entre la doncella bajo cinco guardas y el héroe carece, no sólo de desenlace, sino de introducción ambientadora.

Imagen de portada: El 22 de febrero de 1943, a la edad de 21 años Sophie Scholl, estudiante alemana, fue decapitada junto a su hermano, Hans Scholl, y su amigo Christoph Probst, por disposición de la Corte Popular de Alemania, por formar parte del grupo cristiano pacifista " Rosa Blanca" ("Weißen Rose"), redactar y distribuir panfletos en los que pedían el final de la guerra y denunciaban los actos de barbarie de los nazis. Sus íltimas palabras antes de ser guillotinada fueron: "Sus cabezas también rodarán". Uno de los panfletos que les costaron la vida fue rescatado y millares de copias fueron lanzadas sobre Alemania por los aviones aliados.

Imagen de portada via [crashmacduff.wordpress.com]. Enero de 1942 con 16 años de edad, el partisano Slavoljub Ković fotografiado por las SS antes de su ejecución, en Macva, Serbia, Yugoslavia. Era miembro del Ejército de Liberación Nacional de la aldea Bogatići. Para que denunciara a sus compañeros, Slavoljub fue torturado por los nazis, y, en su cabeza, tallaron con un cuchillo la estrella de cinco puntas del Partido comunista. No delató a sus camaradas. En su honor, el poeta Ljubivoja Ršumovića escribió "Poemu o ćutanju" (Poema al silencio).

UREN, Ormond (Desmond). Also jailed in 1943 was Ormond (Desmond) Uren (fl. 1940s), a Scottish junior officer in the Highland Light Infantry, who had been seconded to SOE's Hungarian sabotage and resistance organization at its headquarters in London. He was arrested in June 1943 after a clandestine meeting with Douglas Springhall. Both were GRU agents. He had passed Springhall information on the SOE policy and communications on Eastern Europe, in order to indicate that his commitment to communism was sincere. He was a secret member of the CPGB, which he had joined in 1940. In October 1943 he was court-martialed, lost his commission, and received a sentence of seven years in jail. He commented that he might not have been caught and tried had he gone to Cambridge University instead of the University in Edinburgh. (Encyclopedia of Cold War Espionage, Spies, and Secret Operations" Richard C. S. Trahair, Robert L. Miller. Ed. Enigma Books).

Douglas Frank SPRINGHALL, aliases 'Springy', 'Peter', 'Zenoff/Zanoff', usually known as 'Dave': British. SPRINGHALL was a founder member of the Communist Party of Great Britain (CPGB) who attended the Lenin School in Moscow, and held party administrative positions at the highest levels including the Central Committee and, from 1940, was National Organiser. In 1943 he was sentenced to seven years imprisonment for obtaining classified information for the Russians from Olive SHEEHAN, a clerk in the Air Ministry who was the leader of a secret Communist group there. Subsequent enquiries showed that SPRINGHALL had also exploited the Communist convictions of Captain Desmond UREN, a Staff Officer in SOE, to obtain classified information. UREN was court-martialled and also sentenced to seven years. Enquiries suggested that SPRINGHALL had been extensively involved in covert activities on behalf of the Party for many years. He died in Moscow in 1953. Collection: Records of the Security Service. Imagen de portada: razzia de gitanos en Asperg. Fueron llevados a campos de concentración y exterminados sistemáticamente por los nazis. La primera prueba para comprobar la eficacia del gas letal Zyklon B se realizó gaseando a 250 niños gitanos. Muchos de ellos, antes de ser asesinados, sufrieron los atroces experimentos seudo-científicos dirigidos por Dr. Mengele y otros medicos nazis. Vease en Wikipedia. Foto de Bundesarchiv. Douglas Frank SPRINGHALL, aliases 'Springy', 'Peter', 'Zenoff/Zanoff', usually known as 'Dave': British. SPRINGHALL was a founder member of the Communist Party of Great Britain (CPGB) who attended the Lenin School in Moscow, and held party administrative positions at the highest levels including the Central Committee and, from 1940, was National Organiser. In 1943 he was sentenced to seven years imprisonment for obtaining classified information for the Russians from Olive SHEEHAN, a clerk in the Air Ministry who was the leader of a secret Communist group there. Subsequent enquiries showed that SPRINGHALL had also exploited the Communist convictions of Captain Desmond UREN, a Staff Officer in SOE, to obtain classified information. UREN was court-martialled and also sentenced to seven years. Enquiries suggested that SPRINGHALL had been extensively involved in covert activities on behalf of the Party for many years. He died in Moscow in 1953. Collection: Records of Los nombres, apellidos y alias de esta lista son los que se hallan en los National Archives de Kew (Reino Unido). La sustitución de un nombre mal escrito por su forma correcta no puede hacerse porque los informes, fichas, expedientes e incluso documentos de identidad recogen sólo el nombre erroneo y, por tanto "desaparecerían" de los buscadores.

-Si desea que se añada al nombre del expediente la grafía o nombre completo de alguien debe presentar documentos que acrediten o de los que se infiera con certeza que ese individuo es la misma persona que el agente del SOE inscrito en la lista: por ejemplo, documento nacional de identidad, cartillas militares, etc.
-Los documentos deben ser accesibles a todos los investigadores y, como esta lista, bajo licencia Creative Commons. Puede subirlos a archive.org.
-Una vez hecho esto y confirmado la identidad añadiremos el nombre correcto al nombre de los Archivos Nacionales.
Saludos cordiales.

KLUGMAN, Norman John, alias James: British. KLUGMAN, an avowed communist and active before the Second ... Norman John KLUGMAN, alias James: British. KLUGMAN, an avowed communist and active before the Second World War particularly in Comintern Student affairs, joined the Royal Army Service Corps as a private in 1940. Having a double first from Oxford, he was soon assessed to be ill-placed and was transferred to SOE, apparently without a proper security assessment. He survived to the rank of major and was later reliably thought to have worked to achieve Soviet ends while at the same time doing useful work for SOE. Collection: Records of the Security Service. Date range: 27 February 1947 - 16 October 1950. Reference:KV 2/789. Subjects: Army, Operations, battles and campaigns, Communism.

2. Ernest Kirkeby JACOBSEN: Norwegian. JACOBSEN, an SOE agent, was landed in Norway in March 1942 ......SOE Agents. Ernest Kirkeby JACOBSEN: Norwegian. JACOBSEN, an SOE agent, was landed in Norway in March 1942 to set up W/T communications for a sabotage group in Ostfold, Norway. He was arrested in August of the same year, but his communications continued with his limited co-operation. He was released in September 1942 and lived at home with his wife in the expectation, on the Germans' part, that other agents might try to contact him. In January 1943 he escaped to Sweden and thence to the UK. He freely admitted his co-operation with the Germans and emphasised that he had no mission for the Germans in this country. He later joined the Norwegian Air Force. Collection: Records of the Security Service. Date range: 18 August 1942 - 27 November 1943. Reference: KV 2/828.
